Where Did The Provider Reps Go?: Practice Administrators Say Provider Representative Staff Decreasing At Major Carriers

“Where is a payer provider rep when you need one?”

Most practice administrators have a story about getting a payer performance issue resolved by an experienced, hands-on provider rep. If only more of them were experienced and hands-on.

While many a practice administrator has bemoaned the lack of training or expertise of their assigned provider representative, it was often true that having a human point-of-contact is much better than hoping for assistance from customer service phone lines. The current trend, according to a number of sources, seems to be that payers are eliminating these positions in favor Read More....
